WEATHER—For Ohio: Fair; cooler tonight; Tuesday fair.

Secretary Taft says everything is more than he could say for Ohio.

It is getting to be a dangerous thing for a woman to reject a suitor.

Governor Hughes made quite a hit with the railroads when he vetoed that two cent fare bill.

An Italian suspected of murder is to be taken back to New York. Better go the limit and take him back to Italy.

It is poor consolation to the fellow who hasn't a dollar in his pocket to know that there is a surplus of $84,000,000 in the nation's treasury.

Governor elect Hoke Smith declares he is going to stop lynchings in Georgia. It is now time for Senator Tillman to begin a crusade against Hoke for re-election.

John D. Rockefeller is just now playing hide and seek with the subpoena servers. The court officers would like to change the game to "Tag! Your'e it."

There promises to be some trouble kicked up at the Jamestown exposition. Some of the states which built state buildings and were promised deeds for the sites have decided that they have been lured and are going to stir up the exposition management. The exposition could not be expected to be a success without some scandal.

John D. Rockefeller and President Roosevelt should join hands. Teddy is constantly advocating larger families and Rockefeller is going into the business of teaching mothers how to care for their children.

That sterling Democrat, J. Hamilton Lewis, endorses the proposition that comes from Georgia to nominate Governor Hoke Smith as the Democratic candidate for President, if it is considered desirable to select a Southern man. What is needed, however, is not a Southern man, or a Northern man, because he is from either section of the country, but one who will be satisfactory to both sections and can so unite the Democracy that he can carry those states that are necessary to win the election. There can be no valid objection to each state proposing a favorite son, but the candidate selected will have to stand the test of availability when the delegates to the national convention assemble, so that the party can enter on the campaign with a fair prospect of success.

In Germany, the leading protectionist country of Europe and one which has recently increased the duties on its imports, there is increasing distress arising from low wages and high prices for the necessities of life. Consul Hannah of Magdeburg reports an enormous increase in the cost of living for 1906 and 1907. He also reports that in certain industries the highest possible earnings of laborers is 8 cents an hour and the average only 4 cents, American money.

The House of Post Cards.

The Consul at Zittau tells a similar story. These reports show that tariff taxes do not improve the condition of working men. The high wages paid in this country in the building and railroad, and mining industries, which are not protected, prove that it is not a protective tariff, but the organizations of laboring men that make wages high in spite of enormous immigration and difficulty in procuring certain raw materials, owing to prohibitive duties.

THE LOVING VERDICT.

Judge William G. Loving, who shot Theodore Estes, because he dragged and ravished the judge's daughter, was acquitted by the jury before which he was tried and it took only forty-five minutes deliberation to reach the verdict. The pleas of the defense was emotional insanity and the "unwritten law," but the jurymen assert that only the "unwritten law" was considered by them, no attention whatever having been paid to the emotional insanity plea.

There is a probability that this will have some effect upon the second trial of Harry Thaw, who is now confined in the Tombs. The circumstances surrounding the murder of Theodore Estes and that of Stanford White were very similar. In each case it was alleged that some drug had been administered in wine or whiskey and that by this means the ruin of a young girl had been accomplished. The Thaw jury considered the case for several days and was unable to reach an agreement, while the Loving jury was out only three quarters of an hour and acquitted the accused. The recitation by the wronged girl in the Loving case was not nearly so dramatic as in the Thaw case, yet it seems to have had a greater effect. The fact that it was a jury of Southern men who tried Judge Loving and a jury of Northerners who tried Harry Thaw, in part accounts for the difference in the outcome of the two trials. The Southerner has always held the virtue of woman in high esteem and summary justice is meted out to the transgressor. This same feeling exists in a lesser degree in the north or New England and Eastern states.

The verdict in the Loving case bears out the claim which was made at the time of the Thaw trial, that if Thaw were being tried west of the Alleghany mountains or south of the old Mason and Dixon's line, he would be acquitted. There is no denying the fact that if Theodore Estes was guilty of the crime as related by Miss Loving he deserved death, but the verdict of the jury established a very dangerous precedent and places in the hands of unscrupulous women a weapon which threatens to become very dangerous. As advocated before if the crimes which are supposed to be covered by the unwritten law are to be made punishable by death at the hands of the aggrieved, then the statutes should be amended to include those crimes, instead of being left open for such a wide application.

SLIPPING INTO RIVER

Kansas Village is Gradually Sliding Into the Missouri.

Kansas City, July 1.—The village of Elwood, Kan., 60 miles north of Kansas City, is gradually slipping into the Missouri river. Elwood lies in the bottom lands, across the river from St. Joseph, Mo. It was settled first in 1885, and in the early days was a rival of St. Joseph.

Fifty years ago the current of the river began to sweep against the levee. The bank crumbled away and it was necessary to move the houses from the water front. This house-moving process has continued, and now all of the original town site has been washed away with the exception of about 50 acres.

Great inroads were made last year, and now again the stream is cutting further back. It seems probable that the entire village soon will be destroyed. Elwood is inhabited by truck gardeners and fishermen.

DETECTIVE PREVENTS MARRIAGE OF ELOPERS

Son of a Pittsburg Millionaire and a Pretty Washington Girl Go to Youngstown to be Married but Because of Their Youthfulness, the Law Prevents the Ceremony.

Washington, July 1.—The romance of pretty Dorothy Brent Mosher, daughter of a clerk in the patent office, and Harry M. O'Hara, son of a wealthy contractor and railroad builder in Pittsburg, received a sudden setback when they were arrested at Youngstown, O., after having eloped from Pittsburg.

Miss Mosher is eighteen years old but looks sixteen. Young O'Hara is only twenty, and for that reason the wedding, which was to have been performed by a justice of the peace, was stopped by a detective. The young couple eloped from Pittsburg, where Miss Mosher was visiting the O'Hara family. Mrs. Mary L. Mosher, the girl's mother, lives at 3100-N-st., and was greatly shocked when informed of her daughter's attempted elopement.

RIVAL OF ORCHARD

Man Who Killed Six Passengers for Money is Caught by Frisco Police

San Francisco, Cal., July 1.—In the arrest of a man named Kelly last night the police believe they have a man with a record like that of Harry Orchard. Kelly is wanted in New York for the murder of six persons during the strike on the elevated railroad. At that time he was in charge of a car, which he is said to have wrecked, killing six passengers.

According to detectives who made the arrest, Kelly admits his train was deliberately wrecked and that he was paid for the crime by strike leaders. Kelly broke down under the sweating process and declared he would tell all when he arrived in New York and take his punishment.

Kelly left New York immediately after the wreck and has been working here as a switchman on the Southern Pacific since. He was arrested last night on Golden Gate avenue on a description furnished by Police Commissioner Bingham, of New York. The confession which Detectives Bell and Gibson declare was made to them is rivaled only by the testimony of Harry Orchard.

Kelly is said to have declared he remained in union after the strike had been ordered, but under instructions from men in the organization, he continued in the employ of the railroad company. The wreck, in which the six passengers were killed, he said, was planned by strike leaders, who were to pay him a certain sum for the crime. In order to fulfill his contract, the detectives say.

L&G IS BROKEN

Member of Columbus Team Hurt at Prospect.

Vern Mitchell, residing near Warrensburg, Ohio, was the victim of an unfortunate accident occurring Saturday afternoon, while playing with the Columbus Interurban team in a game against the Prospect Annex Club. Mitchell was playing second base and was in the act of tagging a base runner, who was attempting a steal when the runner dashed into him at full speed. He was thrown heavily to the ground, alighting on a stone. His left leg was broken in several places. Dr. A. H. Middleton was called and rendered surgical attention. Mitchell is 24 years old and married.

The game was called upon the injury of Mitchell, while the score was 2 to 0 in favor of Prospect, three innings having been played.

MARION TO HAVE A "HOME COMING"

During the Week of Marion County Fair

Retail Merchants Association and Commercial Club Considering 'the Project

There is a probability that the week during which the county fair is held this fall will be made "home-coming" week for Marion. The idea has been suggested to several prominent members of the Retail Merchants' association and the Commercial club will be considered at a conference, of these two organizations in the near future.

The officials of the fair association are anxious that fair week be selected for the home-coming event. They say they will boost the home-coming feature by giving it prominent mention in the fair advertising.

The plan would benefit the fair as well as helping make the home-coming a success. People would have a double attraction to bring them to Marion said a member of the board of fair managers, Monday.

The fair officials say that the fair bring more people to the city than visit here during any other week of the year. It boosts business in general and is a great thing for the town. They say that the idea of making fair week home-coming week is a good one.

The rink will be open on the night of the 3rd and afternoon and evening of the 4th. 7-1-3t

KILLS HIMSELF BECAUSE OF A CLODBURST

Chardon, O., July 1.—The destruction a cloudburst wrought drove Ed. Angell, sixty-seven, to self-destruction. He disemboweled himself by firing a shotgun into his abdomen.

The cloudburst inundated the whole of Angell's 100-acre farm six miles west of Chardon, Monday night. All his crops were ruined. The old man's mind weakened under the blow.

Angell went out to his barn yesterday and loaded an old shotgun. Laying across its muzzle, he kicked the trigger with his foot. The charge of buckshot tore a great, gaping hole in his abdomen. Death was instantaneous.

Angell once was an inmate of the Newburg State hospital. He was a bachelor.

TWO CENT FARE LAW

Becomes Effective in Illinois Today—Old Rate for Interstate Travel

Chicago, July 1.—The new Illinois two cent fare law went into effect today. The railroads sold tickets to points inside the state at the new fare, but refused to grant the new rate to persons buying tickets to points outside of the state. The railroads will demand a ruling from the interstate commerce commission as to whether the new rates control interstate travel. It will probably be some time before the commission gives its ruling, meanwhile the old rates will prevail.

FOUND TWELVE BULLETS NEAR HIS HEART

Dayton, O., July 1.—The mystery attending the murder of Vincent Costantino, the Italian peddler, who was shot to death while in his stable Saturday night, is rapidly clearing up. Resentment upon the part of a married man at the alleged intimacy of the Italian with his wife prompted the deed. The autopsy today disclosed 12 bullet wounds about the victim's heart. The finding this evening of a double barreled shotgun, hidden under a board wall within a block of the scene of the tragedy, and the fact that it contained one loaded shell, the latter being filled with bullets of the character found in the victim's body, furnished the theory and clue to the murderer. The police left last night for the country to arrest the suspect.
